In the late 1950s, the city of San Diego transformed the shallow coastal waters near its downtown area into Mission Bay Park, the largest aquatic park in the West and still the area's premiere water-sports playground. At the center of the action, Paradise Point Resort & Spa claims a 44-acre island made up of sleepy lagoons and pools, a mile-long beach, grassy expanses, and exquisite tropical gardens.

Guests of the island live in 462 bungalow-style rooms and suites. Recently redesigned with inspiration from the South Pacific and Bali, all include luxurious living spaces, individual patios, Wi-Fi, two-line speakerphones with data ports, and marble or granite bathrooms with cascading showers. No. 1 for high-level corporate retreats: the Presidential Suite, with up to four bedrooms, a large living room, dining room, fireplace, full kitchen, and private beachfront lawn.

Most business, however, takes place in an all-new $9 million conference center complete with full convention facilities for up to 1,100 attendees, a grand ballroom, and smaller meeting rooms of all descriptions—some with windows opening to bay views and waterfront decks. Outside, more than 30,000 square feet of space for events complements the 36,821 square
