

LIVING

San Diego's Most Amazing Hotel Pools

JANUARY 23, 2014 – 5:00 PM – 0 COMMENTS

Time to unpack the kids' swimsuits. In balmy San Diego, the onset of fall and winter doesn't mean the end of pool season—the pools are all heated anyway—but it does mean fewer crowds, both at hotels (which are now offering low-season rates) and family-friendly attractions such as Legoland, Sea World, and the famed San Diego Zoo. Here are five sunny SoCal hotel pools that will dazzle the kids and also keep the grown-ups entertained:

Paradise Point

Located in Mission Bay—the 44-acre, tiki-style Paradise Point feels like a little island unto itself, even though it is hidden in plain sight across from Sea World. It has 462 family-friendly bungalow-style rooms (with separate living rooms and often pull-out couches), as well as a mile of beach and five pools interspersed with little lagoons and gardens. Aside from the main, family-friendly pool, kids will love the Lagoon Pool (with fire pits for s'more-making), the Meadow Pool (with a suitable-for-splashing fountain), and the Waterfall Pool, with its own cascades. Kids can feed resident ducks in the lagoons, and the sandy beach is shovel-ready for sand castles, as well as volleyball, bocce ball, horseshoes, and more.

Katrina Brown Hunt contributed this to MiniTime.com.

MiniTime.com gives parents travel recommendations based on the ages of their children. MiniTime.com offers parents a unique combination of expert family travel advice, a community of like-minded parents, and powerful user tools to help parents plan, book, and share their family travel experiences. P